

Wespath

*“I planted, Apollos watered,
but God gave the growth.”*

1 Corinthians 3:6 (NRSVUE)

As United Methodists, how can we be more faithful stewards of money and resources?

It’s an important question for the Church. And it’s a question the benefits and investments agency of the Church, Wespath, cannot answer by itself.

Wespath wants to collaborate with you to cultivate and nurture new ideas about stewardship in today’s world.

Together, we have an opportunity to do something transformative at General Conference 2028— and beyond!

Wespath is committed to finding a path forward that is thoughtful, balanced, ambitious and considerate of the diverse perspectives of United Methodists.

What does it mean to be a steward?

For investors, stewardship can be deploying capital to projects that align with your values or avoiding certain areas that feel misaligned. Beyond investments, stewardship is also relevant for how we use our money and financial resources in ways that reflect our connection as a worldwide Church.

Scan the QR code to join the conversation and receive updates on this important work.