

February 2021 Investment Report

Highlights

- The S&P 500 increased in February amid a decline in new COVID-19 cases, an aggressive vaccination program, growth in consumer spending and signs of increasing business activity.
- Fixed income markets declined as signs of improving economic activity and the potential for higher inflation drove U.S. Treasury bond yields higher.
- The Labor Department reported that U.S. employers added 379,000 nonfarm jobs in February, exceeding estimates. The unemployment rate modestly decreased to 6.2% from 6.3%.
- MAF, USEF, and IPF outperformed, while FIF and IEF underperformed their respective benchmarks for February.

Monthly Overview

Equities Increased as Fixed Income Declined

The S&P 500 Index of large-cap company stocks increased 2.8% in February as companies reported better-than-expected earnings for the fourth quarter of 2020. The Russell 2000 Index of small-cap stocks increased 6.2%, outperforming the large-cap index. Value-oriented stocks outperformed growth-oriented stocks, and value sectors such as Energy and Financials increased 22.6% and 11.6%, respectively. International stocks increased 2.2%, as measured by the MSCI AC World Ex U.S. IMI. The Bloomberg Barclays U.S. Treasury Index decreased 1.8% in February as bond yields moved higher. The increase in bond yields reflected increasing optimism for the economic recovery and growing concern that fiscal and monetary stimulus could lead to higher inflation.

Vaccination Progress and Economic Recovery

The rate of new COVID-19 cases declined globally as vaccinations reached 242 million doses across more than 100 countries. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration authorized Johnson & Johnson's single-dose vaccine, adding a third option to the previously approved Pfizer and Moderna vaccines.

The U.S. Bureau of Economic Analysis reported that household income increased 10% in January, the second largest rise on record, supported by several federal pandemic response programs. The increase in household income also supported consumer spending, and U.S. retail sales (ex-auto) increased 5.9% in January. Nonfarm payroll employment increased by 379,000 in February, supported by gains in the leisure and hospitality sectors as pandemic-related restrictions eased.

The IHS Markit U.S. Composite Purchasing Managers Index increased to 59.5 in February, reflecting strong expansion in manufacturing and service sector activities. S&P 500 companies reported that earnings grew by 3.9% year-over-year in the fourth quarter of 2020, far exceeding the January 29 estimates of -9.3%.

Inflation Expectations and a Steepening Yield Curve

The U.S. Treasury yield curve steepened in February as the 10-year Treasury yield increased 37 basis points to 1.46%, the highest level in more than a year. Inflation expectations for the next five years increased to 2.4% during the month, according to the 5-year breakeven inflation rate, which is measured as the difference in yield between 5-year Treasury securities and 5-year Treasury Inflation Protected Securities (TIPS).

Investment Fund Review (Net-of-Fees Performance)<sup>i</sup>

Equity Funds

U.S. Equity Fund

Fund	February	YTD
U.S. Equity Fund	+3.80%	+4.33%
Russell 3000 Index	+3.13%	+2.67%
Difference (percentage points)	+0.67	+1.66

- During the month and year to date, the fund outperformed its benchmark mainly due to its strategic overweight allocation to small- and mid-cap companies and corresponding underweight to large-cap companies, specifically underperforming large growth companies. In addition, the fund benefited from active managers' investments in cyclical companies benefiting from the re-opening of the economy. Stocks excluded in accordance with Wespath's Exclusions Policy (described here) modestly detracted from relative performance during the month.

International Equity Fund

Fund	February	YTD
International Equity Fund	+1.28%	+1.61%
MSCI ACWI ex U.S. Investable Market Index (Net)	+2.20%	+2.37%
Difference (percentage points)	-0.92	-0.76

- During the month and year to date, the fund underperformed its benchmark as a result of poor performing investments held by active managers, notably, consumer discretionary and financial companies. Investments in private equity and private real estate also detracted from benchmark-relative performance. Stocks excluded in accordance with Wespath's Exclusions Policy slightly detracted from relative performance during the month but modestly contributed year to date.

U.S. Equity Index Fund

Fund	February	YTD
U.S. Equity Index Fund	+3.16%	+2.71%
Russell 3000 Index	+3.13%	+2.67%
Difference (percentage points)	+0.03	+0.04

- The U.S. Equity Index Fund is a passively managed fund designed so that it closely matches the fund benchmark, less fees and expenses.

Fixed Income Funds

Fixed Income Fund

Fund	February	YTD
Fixed Income Fund	-1.51%	-2.21%
Barclays U.S. Universal (ex MBS) Index	-1.47%	-2.29%
Difference (percentage points)	-0.04	+0.08

- A one-hour timing difference in determining the fund's security prices and the benchmark's security prices on February 26, 2021 adversely affected benchmark-relative performance for the month and year-to-date periods. Absent this difference, the fund would have outperformed its benchmark by approximately 26 basis points for the month. The impact of the timing difference reversed on the following trading day (March 1, 2021). The fund's custodian, Bank of New York Mellon, is in the process of changing its pricing of fixed income securities to align with benchmark pricing.
- For the month, allocations to emerging market debt detracted from benchmark-relative performance. Allocations to high-yield corporate bonds, senior loans and convertible debt, as well as the fund's interest rate positioning, added to relative performance. The fund is moderately less sensitive to changes in interest rates than its benchmark, which positively impacted benchmark-relative performance for the month.
- Year to date, the fund has outperformed its benchmark due to its allocations to high-yield corporate bonds, senior loans and convertible debt, as well as the fund's interest rate positioning. The fund is moderately less sensitive to changes in interest rates than its benchmark, which positively impacted benchmark-relative performance for the month. The fund's allocation to emerging market debt detracted from benchmark-relative performance.

Extended Term Fixed Income Fund

Fund	February	YTD
Extended Term Fixed Income Fund	-3.37%	-5.38%
Barclays U.S. Government/Credit Long Term Index	-4.19%	-7.04%
Difference (percentage points)	+0.82	+1.66

- A one-hour timing difference in determining the fund's security prices and the benchmark's security prices on February 26, 2021 adversely affected benchmark-relative performance for the month and year-to-date periods. Absent this difference, the fund would have outperformed its benchmark by approximately 175 basis points for the month. The impact of the timing difference reversed on the following trading day (March 1, 2021). The fund's custodian, Bank of New York Mellon, is in the process of changing its pricing of fixed income securities to align with benchmark pricing.
- The fund's policy of maintaining a lower sensitivity to interest rate movements contributed positively to benchmark-relative returns during the month and year to date. Managers' sector and security selections detracted slightly from relative performance in both periods.

Inflation Protection Fund

Fund	February	YTD
Inflation Protection Fund	-0.98%	-0.58%
IPF Benchmark <sup>ii</sup>	-1.86%	-2.19%
Difference (percentage points)	+0.88	+1.61

- A one-hour timing difference in determining the fund's security prices and the benchmark's security prices on February 26, 2021 adversely affected benchmark-relative performance for the month and year-to-date periods. Absent this difference, the fund would have outperformed its benchmark by approximately 110 basis points for the month. The impact of the timing difference reversed on the following trading day (March 1, 2021). The fund's custodian, Bank of New York Mellon, is in the process of changing its pricing of fixed income securities to align with benchmark pricing.
- The fund's underweight exposure to U.K. inflation-linked securities, as well as its allocation to senior loans and high-yield structured bonds, contributed positively to benchmark-relative performance during the month and year to date. Managers' security and sector selections detracted from benchmark-relative performance.

Balanced Fund

Multiple Asset Fund

Fund	February	YTD
Multiple Asset Fund	+1.39%	+1.54%
